Jackie Marchant, our Catering Manager at Wright Robinson Sports College, received a commendation at the Education Business Awards held recently at The Emirates Stadium in London (11th November).

The award, for School Caterer of the Year, was presented by BBC Newsreader Nicholas Owen. Jackie was nominated for her innovative menus, her on-going crusade to make school meals more nutritional and the work she has done in encouraging children to eat healthier meals.

Jackie was delighted with the nomination; "We have a hard working team who are all keen to show off their culinary skills as well as providing the students with healthy food. In addition we provide a varied menu with regular theme food days."

With over 1,200 meals being served each day the team are keen to produce high quality food in high quantity numbers; "The 2 hour window of serving is sometimes a little fraught but we try and serve with a smile." says Jackie.

On-going the team will shortly be serving some of the elder members of the local community with their annual Christmas dinner and is looking into ways of encouraging the students to cook more at home.
